Lists Rabies Vaccine Centers

Following the fire station inoculation drive, Mayor Telles plans to rely on strict law enforcement methods to inoculate remaining unvaccinated dogs.

Yesterday, Veterinarians Dr. Robert Butchofsky, Dr. Gerald Cady and Dr. Robert Lowe agreed to act for the association and order 5000 injections of anti-rabies vaccine on consignment for the week's drive.

McDevitt is a critic of the McClellan committee for ignoring management to a large extent so far in its investigations. He says that the racketeers who have been turned up in the labor movement originated on the management side, and are still operating with some employers, particularly in New York City.

McDevitt said Cope's main problem still is "to get our people to participate and make dollar contributions to the political fund."

Sticks Neck Out in Probe

The committee fired Miller the next day. He sent his wife. The Senate committee staff started digging.

After Miller read his prepared statement, Committee Counsel Robert F. Kennedy started reading affidavits.

The first was from Stephen F. Dunn, president of a furniture employees association in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Dunn said that in 1946 Miller, then an organizer for a Furniture Workers Union, had threatened a bloody union fight in Grand Rapids and had asked how much it would be worth to the employers to get him out of town.

Dunn, who was not present, was a "scurrilous liar."

Kennedy also read affidavits during a union contract negotiation in 1949, Miller solicited a bribe of $500 from New York Mattress Maker David Scharaga to talk the workers in Scharaga's plant out of their demands for retroactive pay. He actually received $600, the affidavits said.

Miller denied all this and said it was a plot to oust him from the union because he threatened to expose Hoffman's manipulations of the union welfare fund.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Anthony (Tony Ducks) Corallo, mystery figure in New York labor rackets, refused to testify today but heard a recorded wire-tape in which he directed another Teamster official to refer a problem to "Jimmy" Hoffa.

Appearing before the Senate Labor Rackets Committee, Corallo refused to answer almost all the questions put to him. He declined to say whether he knows Hoffa—his presumptive to the presidency of the giant Teamsters Union—or Racketeer Johnny Dio.

But the committee, over the objections of Corallo's attorney, confronted the Teamster official and narcotics figure with a series of tape recordings and had a New York City detective identify Corallo's voice.

The committee is especially interested in Hoffa because he has

The musicians, brought here at Orlando Barera's expense, are Inez Turley, violinist; Fred Petty, French horn, and Linda Harwell, bassoonist.

Miss Turley and Miss Harwell participated in the Border Music Festival this summer. They were the festival's two soloists. Miss Turley, who was concertmistress of the orchestra, played as her solo Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in E Minor. Miss Harwell played first bassoon in the festival orchestra.

Mr. Petty played first chair French horn in the All-State orchestra. He, too, is a master of more than one instrument and plays string bass and piano in Fort Worth dance bands.

Miss Harwell also was with the All-State orchestra, playing first chair bassoon. She has appeared with the Fort Worth Civic Opera and also as a soloist with various university groups.
