As his sub stroked back toward Melbourne, Commander Towers told scientist John Osborne that the Egyptian planes that bombed Washington and London during World War III bore Russian markings and the retaliatory bombing of Russia was, therefore, a tragic mistake.

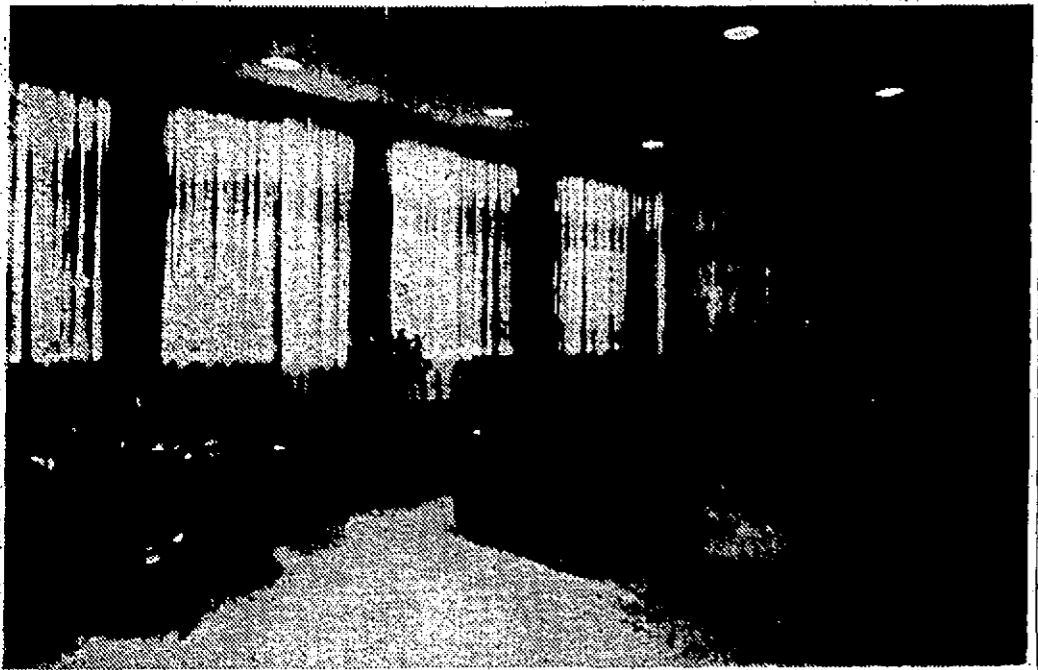

John Osborne, "The trouble is, the damn bombs got too cheap. Every little stockpiled country like Albania could have a stockpile of them." Towers replied, "Another trouble was airplanes. The Russians had been giving the Egyptians planes. So had Britain... to Israel and Jordan."

"It wasn't the big countries that set off this thing. It was the little ones, the irresponsible," he concluded.

State National Bank Expands To Handle Increased Customers

The State National Bank has completed a program of expansion and rebuilding. Expansion and redesigning of the note and discount, collection and savings departments were a necessary step to meet increasing customer requirements and provide latest modern banking facilities, bank officials said.

Fake Playgirl Caught in E. P.

For this impertinence Mrs. Laukner was sentenced in 1941 to a year and a day in a Federal reformatory at Alderson, W. Va. After getting out she went to Detroit on probation, then transferred her charm to the West Coast.

Borrowed $200

The report cited a total of six years she served in the California State Prison for Women for passing bad checks.

After leaving the California prison she first went to Phoenix. The Government record says she went under the name of Pat Phillips, went to a lawyer for legal aid and borrowed $200 from him, citing some mythical fur coats as collateral.

She was in El Paso last February. That was when she gave the bad $129 check, using the name of Pat Phillips.

Mrs. Laukner next appeared in Houston as a business woman who loved golf tournaments. She became chummy with one of the well-known golf names (not President Eisenhower) and lost $300 to him playing gin rummy and poker.

Check Bounced

She didn't have the $300, but she wrote another check on the Santa Monica bank. It bounced, but by that time Mrs. Laukner was riding high as a Government attorney in Chicago.

When the Federals finally got wise the confidence-winning blonde flew to Florida. There, as a "civil engineer" with a degree from the University of Michigan, and engineering "training by correspondence from Vanderbilt," she almost got writer's cramp distributing hot checks drawn on New York banks.

The Government report noted ironically that her story about civil engineer degrees and training wasn't so.

Joins Society

With a trail of $5000 of worthless checks behind her in Florida, Mrs. Laukner, the report relates, transferred her charm to New York City. She quickly worked her way into cafe society and became cozy with Social Registry personalities.

A Government supposition that she might have been a call girl, also, was one of the items she hotly denied. According to her own story, apparently substantiated, she is the daughter of a wealthy Michigan chain store owner. She said she married at 18, incurred her parents displeasure, and left

Police Call On Artist for Help

Miss Prieto always said, "They do not know where I keep the box."

The first clue detectives received in the case was when Mrs. Camacho told them that she was in the store at 7 a. m. yesterday. She saw two youths—both dark and dressed in faded blue denim trousers—standing inside the store.

Youths Sneered

She said she told them to tell Miss Prieto what they wanted. "They sneered at me," Mrs. Camacho said. She left.

Two suspects were standing at Myrtle and Florence about 8 a. m. yesterday. City Detectives W. R. Barron and Joe Avalos said they were patrolling the area and saw the suspicious looking pair.

They questioned them. One, a juvenile, said he was on his way to report to a probation officer.

The other, a 21-year-old man, said he was a friend of the juvenile and was going with him. The detectives took their names and addresses and thought no more about the pair until the murder was reported at 9:30 a. m. They went to the suspects' houses.

The juvenile resembled one of the youths seen in the store, according to Mrs. Camacho. But she said she was not sure. The other man did not fit either description.

A 29-year-old construction worker became the third suspect when neighbors said he had been on a five-day "drunk."

The man—who lives one block from the murdered woman—has been in debt and owes several months back rent. He has been asked to move by his landlady.

The man was seen standing on the corner across the street from the murdered woman's store between 7 and 8 p. m. by Ed Harrison, who operates a car lot directly across the street from the home. After a divorce she was married at least two more times, once to an Air Force officer, the Government report says.

Mrs. Laukner was arrested last August in the lobby of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York. After appearing in Federal court there authorities transferred her to El Paso for prosecution on the check charge.

What the psychiatrist thinks of her is to be made known to Judge Thomson next Friday.

Mining Men Elect Officers

(Continued from Page One) cluded a call for tax reform in New Mexico, with immediate reduction and eventual abolition of the state severance tax; restoration of the right to buy, sell or hold gold; praise for work of the New Mexico Bureau of Mines; favoring stockpiling of minerals when output exceeds demand; deploring the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission's recent announcement it will curtail purchase of uranium; and endorsement of the declaration of policy of the American Mining Congress as adopted last September at Salt Lake City.

The Mining Congress policy included demands for protection of the mining industry, tax reform, curtailment of government expenditures, and sweeping new labor legislation to prevent labor leaders from destroying competition and "placing the American worker in union bondage."

Hits Frills

Governor Edwin L. Mechem of New Mexico, in a talk to International Mining Days yesterday, called for elimination of "frills" in Government.

"I think we should consider getting back to the essential things," the Governor said. "Education, highways and protection of life and property are the main reasons for the existence of government at any time."

Governor Mechem said areas of governmental regulation now seem to be required. "Unfortunately," he added, "they seem to grow instead of diminishing."

He said there are "many things in government that are needless and probably should be eliminated," but did not specify them.

He praised the mining industry as one of the major factors in New Mexico's economy. "The mining industry has improved tremendously," he said, "and it has improved New Mexico tremendously."

'Deplorable Conditions'

Robert Palmer, secretary of the Colorado Mining Assn., said conditions in the mining industry in his state are "deplorable." It is time, he said, to consider protective tariffs or other measures that will "make the mining industry blossom."

Uranium mining companies are investing a total of $75 million in

Rape Trial Jury Retires

The jury in the case of Eduardo (Lalo) Robles, charged with rape, went into deliberation today at 12:40 p. m. The trial is being held in the 34th District Court.

Robles, indicted with two companions, is charged with the assault of a 15-year old girl on August 28. The two companions, Salvador the Ambrosia Lake district of northern New Mexico. E. E. Jones of the Kermac Nuclear Fuels Corp. at Grants, N. M., told delegates.

At present two mines are in full production and three others are in partial production, Mr. Jones said. Contracts for four new mills have been signed.

He said exploration drilling on Kermac properties has found 15,000,000 tons of proven uranium ore, and that the estimated proven and potential reserve for the district is 50,000,000 tons.

Salcido and Amador Holguin, will be tried later.

The defense presented a character witness testimony which concluded yesterday at 4 p. m. State counsel then qualified the 10-man and two-woman jury on the death penalty.

Robles pleaded not guilty to the charge of rape by force, and denied parts of the girl's story. He admitted participation in the attack of the girl with his companions.

Robles, 21, is married and the father of two children.

Mrs. Patterson's Relatives Sought

They now know the M. stands for Mary, a middle name, not the surname.

This was established by a search of property deeds.

Mr. Patterson's father, Luther M. Patterson of Chicago, deeded the home at 3000 Piedmont avenue to his son and daughter-in-law on Aug. 3, 1946.

The father set forth in the deed that he, "Luther M. Patterson, a single man of Chicago, (County of Cook, etc.) Ill., for and in consideration of the love and affection which I have for my son, W. D. Patterson, and his wife, Margaret Mary Patterson, have given, granted, and so on, deeding Lot 15, Block 109, Kern Place Addition to the City of El Paso, the buildings, furniture and furnishings to the son and daughter-in-law.

Purchases Property The father had purchased the property on Sept. 5, 1945 from Benjamin C. Anthony and his wife, Constance.

Nowhere in any records discovered so far has there been any listing of Margaret Patterson's maiden name. All of her personal and business friends who have been asked so far have said she never mentioned her maiden name to them. They said she never talked of her childhood or of her relatives. They have been unable to find where Mr. and Mrs. Patterson were married.
