

Nine El Paso Parks Get New Playground Equipment

Gear Valued At $4700

Kids in the Palm Grove park area climbed aboard the "Little Engine Climber," a new playground toy installed at the park, today and gave their delighted approval.

Gene Stogner, City Parks and Recreation employ in charge of the project, announced that new playground equipment valued at $4700 will be installed at nine El Paso parks. The Palm Grove Park was first to receive some of the new equipment.

Besides the Little Engine Climber, an animal swing set, a whirl-a-way and a Castle Slide Tower were also installed. Children started playing on the new equipment almost before installations were completed.

Other park areas due to get new equipment are Cork Street Memorial, Memorial (old bridge area), Grandview, Tobin, Cedar Grove, Carl Leonard and Alamo. The equipment will be painted in polka dots and candy stripes to attract the youngsters' attention.

The equipment includes swing sets, towers, whirl-a-ways, slides and turtles. The turtles are made of concrete and are fine for climbing over and under.

ENJOY SLIDE TOWER—A Castle Slide Tower has also been installed at Palm Grove park. Eager youngsters climbed aboard while a worker was still laying a cement base under the Tower.

NEW FUN TRAIN—Palm Grove children are delighted with the Little Engine Climber in their park which was installed by the City Parks and Recreation Dept. Notice the polka dot wheels on the stationary "choo choo."

Three Employees Get Bliss Awards

Maj. C. L. Wilberger, Division Chief of the Stock Control, G-4 section of Ft. Bliss, presented three civilian awards to El Paso residents. They are James C. Bean, who was presented the Commendation Certificate for his outstanding performance at Center Ordnance as Supervisory Administrative Officer; Mrs. Mary A. Maynes, clerk-stenographer, was awarded the outstanding performance rating; and Hector Acosta for submitting a usable suggestion, was presented a cash award and certificate.

that there could have been collusion. "If there had been collusion," asked Holmdahl, "then why would they offer me $100,000 to kill Villa?" Holmdahl's answer at the moment satisfied me, but reflecting later, I could see that there was another side to the coin, even $100,000 worth of coin. They could have wanted Villa silenced. Holmdahl said they picked him because they figured he was the only man who could get to Villa. Holmdahl had been a captain under Villa in the early days of the revolution and he had even been convicted in a U. S. Federal Court and sentenced to one and one-half years for participating in the Mexican Revolution. His trial was in El Paso. But let's go back into Holmdahl's background and see how he got mixed up in the fighting down there to begin with.

EMIL HOLMDAHL was one of eight children born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Holmdahl at Fort Dodge, Iowa. Both of his parents had come to this country from Sweden as small children and his father was an electrical engineer. Emil was born in 1883. Emil had an older brother, Monty, who had joined the Army and served in the Spanish American War; Emil wanted to join up, too, but was too young.

"Anyway," said Emil, "I left home and got to Kansas City. When I got there, I had only $2 and I gave this to some bum to come with me to the recruiting station and swear I was of age." Emil served in the Philippines, was discharged and arrived back in San Francisco by Russell Sage, the millionaire father-in-law of Colonel Slocum. "I was informed that Colonel Slocum considered Villa's raid on Columbus as a reflection on his personal honor and the only way this blot could be removed was by the death of Villa."

Holmdahl told about the offer in reply to another question I had asked him. Old-timers who were in Columbus at the time of the raid have insisted that the circumstances were such to lead them to believe that Villa raided the border town in collusion with our Government—or at least some pretty high representatives of it. Holmdahl said he didn't think this was true—and then he told of the Slocum-Pershing-Bell offer to kill Villa as a retaliation

Out of the West

$100,000 Villa Assassination Fee Rejected

By BILL MCGAW
Emil Holmdahl, soldier of both fortune and misfortune, denies emphatically he opened Pancho Villa's grave in 1926 and decapitated the corpse of the revolutionary leader for a reputed $30,000, but he admits he was offered $100,000 in 1917 to assassinate Villa—and he turned that proposition down for several reasons.

"I was offered $100,000 after our troops came out of Mexico under General Pershing in 1917 to go back down into Mexico on my own and as a private citizen to assassinate Villa," the 79-year-old soldier told me in a recent interview at his home in Van Nuys, Calif. Holmdahl charged that the offer was made to him at Ft. Bliss by General Bell, at the behest of Col. Herbert Slocum, commander of the 13th Cavalry stationed at Columbus, and General Pershing, who led the expeditionary troops into Mexico to disperse Villa and his forces.

"General Pershing came to me one day with Colonel Slocum and gave me three $20 gold pieces for my expenses to Ft. Bliss to talk with General Bell," explained Holmdahl. "Bell said I would slip into Mexico and murder Villa. They figured I was the only man alive who would be able to get near enough to Villa to assassinate him."

"I ASKED General Bell who would pay the money, where it was coming from and he told me the $100,000 would be paid by Russell Sage, the millionaire father-in-law of Colonel Slocum. "I was informed that Colonel Slocum considered Villa's raid on Columbus as a reflection on his personal honor and the only way this blot could be removed was by the death of Villa." Holmdahl told about the offer in reply to another question I had asked him. Old-timers who were in Columbus at the time of the raid have insisted that the circumstances were such to lead them to believe that Villa raided the border town in collusion with our Government—or at least some pretty high representatives of it. ## Young Speakers Reminded of Opportunities

"You boys have an unlimited business future, but only if you will let nothing stand in your way in getting a good solid education and continuing your work through your Toastmasters Club towards acquiring the important ability of clear self-expression," said Mike Brumbelow in his address to the members of the El Paso Boys' Club Junior Linguistic Toastmaster Club.

The occasion was the new officers' installation party held in the banquet room of the Yamada Inn. Eddie Marquez, the adult volunteer director of Junior Toastmasters, installed officers who will serve for six months. They are: Sergio Reza, president; Willie Chavez, vice president; Sal Garcia, secretary and Ben Garcia, sergeant-at-arms.

Outgoing President Sal Garcia presided and Ben Garcia was toastmaster. Topmaster was Sergio Reza who asked Junior Toastmasters and three of the adult guests to speak extemporaneously on a variety of subjects. The three main five minute speakers were Johnny Uranga, Joe Renteria and Willie Chavez.

Planners Adopt Terrace Hill Map

City Plan Commission adopted a subdivision map for unit six of Terrace Hills adjacent to Fairbanks drive in northeast El Paso. The map, submitted by Blackmon and Associates, developers of the area, includes 71 lot for residences. Ken Braxton of El Paso appeared before the Commission meeting in City Council chambers to discuss land used in Stiles Gardens adjacent to Dale road in the Lower Valley. He asked the Commission to consider change of zoning in part of the area from residential to commercial.

City Plan Engineer Jonathan Cunningham said the Commission would study the area and bring it up for discussion next month. In other action the Commission approved a change in the building set-back line from 70 to 40 feet in the 2300 block of Dyer street. The request was made by A. A. Shamaley, owner of the property, who said he plans to build a dry cleaning establishment there.

Dr. Cline, who is originally from Indiana, received his bachelor's degree from Ball State Teachers College, his master's from New Mexico Highlands University and his doctorate from the University of Southern California. He has held several educational positions in New Mexico, including that of director of education of the Santa Fe County Schools and instructor at New Mexico Highlands University. Dr. Cline is especially qualified in the area of remedial reading and the teaching of bilinguals. He and his wife, Betty, have two children—Sally, 24, and Candace, 18. Dr. Cooper attended high school in Capitan, N. M., and received both his bachelor's and master's degrees from New Mexico State University. He received his doctorate from the University of Oregon. KEY REMINDER—Jay Sweeney, Northeast 20-30 Club president, left, and Jimmy Hicks, subdistrict governor, display key. These keys will be placed on all cars in various shopping centers throughout the City advising owners to take their keys out of the ignition. Members sponsor this campaign to help reduce juvenile crimes as studies reveal 55 per cent of such crimes involves auto thefts, and that most cases of stolen cars occur as result of keys left in ignition.

Two Join Staff At Texas Western

Two Doctors of Education have been appointed to the Texas Western College faculty. It was announced by Dr. Joseph M. Ray, TWC president. They are Dr. Marion Cline Jr. and Dr. Lloyd Gayle Cooper. Dr. Cline, who is originally from Indiana, received his bachelor's degree from Ball State Teachers College, his master's from New Mexico Highlands University and his doctorate from the University of Southern California. ## Patterson's Sold; No Operational Changes Planned

Continued operation of Patterson Photo Supply under that name was in prospect today with announcement that David E. Goodman has bought the firm whose owners, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Patterson, vanished without a trace in March, 1957. The sale is subject to approval of Judge William E. Ward of 34th District Court, who is on vacation.

Application for court authority to sell the property to Mr. Goodman was made by Herbert Roth, receiver for the Patterson estate. Price is $80,000. The proposed sale price is $80,000, and will include merchandise, fixtures and leasehold at 718 North Stanton street. Patterson Photo Supply moved to that location early this year from where it was located for years at 113-15 East Main drive.

Mr. Goodman, engaged in real estate and property management at 917 North Oregon street and one of the most widely known business men in El Paso, said his offer to buy Patterson Photo Supply is intended principally as an investment, but he expects to give some personal attention to the photo business. He said the new manager will be Jerome S. Reed, who now operates Reed's Photo Mart at Mills and Stanton streets, and James W. Lyon, present manager of Patterson Photo Supply, will assist Mr. Reed in the management. Mr. Goodman said no changes in personnel is contemplated.

'Good Investment' "Patterson Photo Supply is a long-established business of the finest reputation," Mr. Goodman said. "I consider it a good investment. I also desire to see the firm continue in business under the name that is so well established, instead of possibly sold to outsiders or maybe liquidated in the event its former owners are declared legally dead less than two years from now." "If the sale is approved by the Court, it is my intention to continue the business under its present and long-established name. It will be a firm wholly owned in El Paso. It is in a good location. The same franchises will be kept, assuring supplies and equipment manufactured by the nation's foremost photographic sources."

Counseling Classes Set For Graham Crusade

Forrest Layman, assistant director of counseling and follow-up for the Billy Graham Crusade, is the latest member of the advance team for the event to arrive in El Paso. Classes to train counselors will begin Oct. 1, with locations to be announced at a later date, Mr. Layman said.

Volunteers from the membership of local churches attend four class periods which will qualify them to meet with the individual convert, help the convert to understand his problems, and recommend portions of the scriptures, Mr. Layman said. He will also do follow-up work, seeing that the convert becomes affiliated with a church, answering questions the convert may have and preparing an information sheet concerning the convert for the use of his minister.

The first class will deal with qualifications of a counselor. The second class is "Use of the Scriptures in Counseling." Class three is "Counseling for Restoration and Unconverted," and class four is called "New Testament Follow-up." A fifth session will cover procedures in counseling. Mr. Layman is from Southbend, Ind., and has been with the Crusade since 1958. He is a graduate of Columbia Bible College and will be in El Paso through most of December. He served with NATO in Naples, Italy for three years as secretary to the U. S. Army General for the "readiness of forces Forrest Layman in southern European countries," he said, and he has come to El Paso from the Chicago Crusade. Advance work, making preparations for the appearance of Mr. Graham, Nov. 4 through 11, has been under way in El Paso for some time. The meetings are interdenominational. Mr. Layman said, with most churches actively participating. Churches from other cities in the area have planned to send delegates.

REGISTRATION BEGINS at Grace Methodist Church for the weekday kindergarten which opens Sept. 4. From left: Mrs. Glenn Elwood, director, Chrissy Cooper, a graduate of the school, who is registering her brother Lon and her sister, Susie. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Cooper. Registration is still open.
